How do you spend your holidays if your parents are out for work?

Zheng Chenyu says that she will be worried. "Where can I find food? How can I cook it?" she says. And she knows little about cooking.

"I have to have tomato and egg soup. I think many of classmates are the same. We don't know what to do, or how to look after ourselves," says Zheng.

Although Zheng believes that some life skills (技能), such as cooking and washing clothes, are very important, she doesn't think teenagers get enough practice.

Most teenagers only have time for their homework. They don't learn any life skills until they go to college (大学). But Sima Yige doesn't think so. "I think I will be all right. I know how I should cook some easy dishes because my mom showed me," the 13-year-old boy says, "there is much more to learn than cooking, like making your
