When I was in the sixth grade, one day my teacher asked our class to think about the question "What does 'doing the right thing' mean to you?" over the weekend. We could talk to our parents or anyone else we thought might have a good answer. _____ Monday, we were to hand in an essay (论文) on it, and be prepared to live up to our _____

The entire weekend, I was trying to _____ something that would impress my teacher and be easy to live by. I talked to my parents, called my grandmother and asked my neighbor. Everyone had good answers, but I didn't feel like I could live up to them.

On Sunday afternoon, my parents said they were going to my Aunt Cindy's house. That usually _____ that I would have to entertain my four-year-old cousin Andrea _____ my parents visited. I found a Disney movie for Andrea, and then I sat down and started to write my essay. It was due (到期的) the next morning and this was my last _____

Soon I felt a pair of eyes on me. It was Andrea. "What are you doing?" Andrea asked. "I have to write an essay about what 'doing the right thing' means to me." I answered. Andrea laughed. Could this smart four-year-old _____ know the answer? "That's easy," she said. "Doing the right thing means being nice to your family and friends. Never lie. Eat lots of fruits and vegetables. Take a bath when you're _____ And never put rocks in your mouth."

I stared with great _____ at my little cousin. Then I jumped up and gave her the biggest hug. Not only had Andrea answered a very tough question for me, but I could easily live by _____ of her answers. All I had to do was to be nice, not to lie, to keep myself clean and healthy, and never put rocks in my mouth. So when I wrote my essay, I _____ the story about Andrea and how she had answered my question.

Two weeks later, my teacher returned everyone's essays. I _____ an A+ along with a little note my teacher had written at the top: "Always do the right thing and give Andrea an A+, too!"

【1】 A.By B.Over C.About D.For

【2】 A.answers B.plans C.advice D.information
