New York City has one of the best skylines in the world, and you can view it from many different places. But a view is best accompanied by a good meal. Here's our list of the best restaurants in NYC with amazing views.

Alma

Alma is the perfect waterfront dining destination that'll allow you to relax with a good meal. It's a rooftop restaurant with open-air dining, but when it's cold or raining, it covers the spot to keep the bad weather out, so diners get to see the downtown NYC skyline no matter what. Alma itself serves up mainly Mexican food.

Where: 187 Columbia St, Brooklyn, NY 11231

The View

It might be a bit on the pricey side, but The View is worth spending those extra dollars. Located on the 48th floor of the Marriott Marquis hotel in Times Square, you'll be in the heart of all the action with a breathtaking view to match. Even more amazing is the fact that it's actually NYC's only revolving rooftop restaurant, and every hour, the floor makes a complete 360-degree turn.

Where: 1535 Broadway, New York, NY 10036

Luna Asian Bistro

Queens is known for its different Asian cuisines, but that experience can be strengthened with a view. Here, you can enjoy excellent Japanese cuisines together with views of Astoria and Manhattan in the distance. The sight is particularly amazing in the evening when you can see all the bright lights.

Where: 32-72 Steinway St, 6th floor, Astoria, NY 11103

Refinery Rooftop

The Empire State Building is one of the most famous symbols of NYC, and it's also one of the hardest buildings to get a good shot of. Luckily, Refinery Rooftop takes care of that for you and serves up some classic food and drink, which are served in an industrial-style room with a retractable (可伸缩的) glass roof, which allows for both indoor and outdoor seating.

Where: 63 W 38th St, New York, NY 10018

How far would you go to make a good impression at a new job? A college student in Alabama walked 32 kilometers in the dark to get to his new job.

The story begins with Walter Carr's car breaking down the night before starting a new job at Bellhops, a furniture moving company. Carr was unable to find a taxi. So he decided to walk from his house to the job in Pelham 32 kilometers away. He left at midnight so that he could make it to the customer's house by 8:00 am the next morning.

Pelham police saw him walking along a highway at 4:00 am. So, they stopped to see if he needed help. After hearing his story, they took him to a restaurant for breakfast and then to a church where he could safely wait until 8:00 am. The police then took Carr to the home of customer Jenny Lamey. Lamey said that even though Carr had just walked the entire night, he refused her offer to rest. He just wanted to start working.
