Which day of the week is the happiest? Which	is the most depressing? In order to fi	nd (25) answers, some experts studied 22,000 people of	• phones twice a day, asking them(27)_	• , ,
(28) they were with, where they were According to the study, our moods are at their	brightest on Saturday and will continu	ie into Sunday. But as the working week (29) (begin) on M	onday, it is on Tuesday (30)	we reach our (31) (low), with levels of contentment(满足	dropping.
"(32) seems that on Monday the week	kend has not quite worn off," said Pro	ofessor George MacKerron, who led the research. "By Tuesda	y people are well into the working wea	ek and the following weekend is not yet in sight."	I W

Sit up straight. Say please and thank you. Don't	t put your elbows on the table. Most	of us were drilled from an early age in proper manners and etique in different cultures.
Take table manners for example. In many parts	of the world, it's considered rude to	make noises when eating. The Japanese, however, think it customa noodles. They say the noodles taste better. A proof of the say the noodles taste better.	// /	_ sound could seem strange in Japan.	, ensem who can necessary (c.)
Another interesting cultural difference is portray	yed in a TV advertisement (35)	(set) in an Asian city. It shows an Asian family inviting a western	ner to dinner. The Asians prepare a los	t of food to show the guest (36) are hospitable(殷勤好客的	J). Westerners are taught to "clean the	eir plates" and think it's impolite to leave food in the dishes. So the	guest tries to finish his meal without le	eaving (37) on his dishes. However, an Asian host sees an em	pty dish as a sign (38) the gue	est wants more food.
In the ad, the host immediately prepares more f	food for the guest, who tries to finish	his food again just to show his manners. It becomes a circle of misur	nderstanding.
Differences are also seen in other aspects. Whi	ile extending a hand to shake the hand	of a person you're meeting with (39)(seem) to most of	us a universal way of showing friendling	ness, an Orthodox Jew (东正犹太教徒) will not shake hands with	someone of the opposite sex. Similar	rly, a strict Muslim woman will not shake hands with a man, though	h a Muslim man will shake hands with	a non-Muslim woman. People in these cultures generally avoid	d (40)(touch) people of the	he opposite sex who are not family members.
