

北京市2022年高三上册英语高考模拟免费检测试卷

1.

Once I was playing in the woods when the sky started to turn dark and the wind started to blow. I saw a big black cloud 【1】 (move) towards me. Suddenly, I felt the rain hitting my face! Actually, it was pouring! Then I saw lightning in the sky. And later, BOOM!!! A loud clap of thunder! Then I saw a little old hut and ran inside. It smelled awful and the walls were shaking, but it was 【2】 (good) than nothing! Outside, the wind was howling and things were flying around. I just stood in the corner, cold and scared. 【3】 (lucky) my dad came and found me. I was safe!

2.

Li Bai was a Chinese poet praised from his own day to the present as a romantic figure 【1】 took traditional poetic forms to new heights. Thirty-four of his poems are included in Three Hundred Tang Poems. 【2】 (he) early poetry took place in the “golden age” of Tang dynasty. This all changed suddenly when all of northern China 【3】 (destroy) by war. Fortunately, many of his poems 【4】 (survive) ever since, enjoying lasting popularity in China and elsewhere.

3.

The Chinese Lunar(月球) Exploration Program is designed to be conducted in three stages: The first is simply reaching lunar orbit(轨道), a task 【1】 (complete) by Chang’e 1 in 2007 and Chang’e 2 in 2010. The second is 【2】 (land) on the Moon, as Chang’e 3 did in 2013 and Chang’e 4 in 2019. The third one is collecting lunar samples and sending them to Earth, a task for the future Chang’e 5 and Chang’e 6 missions. It 【3】 (be) China’s first sample return mission in December 2019.

4.

Did The Earth Move For You?

Eleven-year-old Angela suffered from a disease involving her nervous system. She was unable to _____ and her movement was restricted in other ways as well. The doctors did not hold out much _____ of her ever recovering from this illness. They _____ she’d spend the rest of her life in a wheelchair. They said that _____, if any, were able to come back to normal after catching this disease. But the little girl was brave and confident. There, lying in her hospital bed, she would _____ to anyone who’d listen that she was definitely going to be walking again someday. She was then sent to a specialized rehabilitation hospital in the San Francisco Bay area. Whatever therapies(治疗方法) could be _____ to her case were used. Things didn’t work as the therapists expected. Still they were charmed by her _____ spirit. They taught her about _____ — about seeing herself walking. If it would do nothing else, it would _____ give her hope and something _____ to do in the long waking hours in her bed. Angela would work as hard as possible in physical therapy, in whirlpools and in exercise sessions. And she worked just as hard lying there _____ doing her imaging, visualizing herself moving, moving, moving!

One day, as she was twisting with all her _____ to imagine her legs moving again, it seemed as though a _____ thing happened: The bed moved! It began to move around the room! She _____ out, “Look what I’m doing! Look! Look! I _____ it! I moved!”

Of course, at this very moment everyone else in the hospital was screaming, too, and running for _____. People were screaming, equipment was _____ and glass was breaking. You see, it was the recent San Francisco earthquake. But don’t tell that to Angela. She’s _____ that she did it. And now only a few years later, she’s back in school. _____ her own two legs. No crutches(拐杖), no wheelchair. You see, anyone who can shake the earth between San Francisco and Oakland can conquer a little disease. You never know what’s around the corner until you take a _____ step.

【1】 A. hear B. speak C. walk D. see

【2】 A. pride B. hope C. regret D. pity

【3】 A. predicted B. forgot C. denied D. promised

【4】 A. some B. few C. many D. all

【5】 A. apologize B. appeal C. refer D. swear

【6】 A. applied B. appointed C. compared D. explained

【7】 A. competitive B. independent C. sensitive D. undefeatable